

Evelyn Thaw in Paris.

Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry K. Thaw, is now in Paris. She will soon go to London, where she has a vaudeville engagement at $5,000 per week. In a recent interview in Paris Mrs. Thaw said:

"As to my plans, I am going to earn my living. That is all. You might say I left the stage to better myself and I am returning to the stage to better myself. London papers attacked me because they thought I wanted to make capital out of my association with a tragedy. If they only knew how little I want to be associated with the past!"

STATE SCORES IN PROSECUTION

San Francisco, June 7.—The state scored heavily in its prosecution of members of the San Francisco police force for alleged complicity with the operations of the notorious "forty thieves" bunco gang when Frank Esola, a former detective, was found guilty late last night. The jury was out four hours.

Esola was indicted on the specific charge of having conspired with Michael Gallo, now a convict, in robbing a farmer of $300. With seven other policemen, the rest of whom are awaiting trial on conspiracy charges, he was accused by four confessed bunco men with complicity in swindling operations said to have yielded the bunco ring more than $300,000 since 1905, from which time, the confidence men declared, they had worked under police protection.

Gallo's charges were materially strengthened by the corroborative testimony of former Assemblyman Dimio Denegri, a druggist, who testified to having paid Esola money for a bunco man in another instance and to have delivered messages from Gallo to Esola regarding the former's agreement to pay the police a tribute of 25 per cent on all swindling operations. This testimony marked the turning point of the case, Superior Judge Dunne, before whom Esola was tried, previously having barred the testimony of Gallo's three accomplices regarding Esola's supposed complicity in other swindling operations.

Esola who served sixteen years with the San Francisco police department, and who is a brother of Fred Esola, former candidate for chief of police, is the only one of the eight indicted men tried on a grand larceny charge, conspiracy indictments having been returned against the others. The remaining seven will be tried together. The trial probably will be begun next week.

THREE CREWS OF WORKMEN BUSY ON MIDLAND TRAIL

Three crews of workmen, aggregating 150 persons, are being employed by the state road commission in building that section of the Midland trail in Price canyon between Castle Gate and Colton. The work is of a rough building through rough "bad horse" pass, but the commission announces that this section as well as the section from Castle Gate to Price will be ready and open when the Indianapolis auto manufacturers come over the trail from Colorado in their machines next month.

Work on the trail between Colton and Castle Gate has been going on a week, according to announcements at the office of the state commission. The work has been hampered a little, said Chief Clerk J. J. Acorn, by the security of labor. He added that more men are being secured and that there will be no delay in the finishing of the trail.

"The trail is ready almost entirely through Grand and Emery counties," said Mr. Acorn, "and next week work will start in the northern counties that share in the Midland trail appropriation."

M. H. Hamilton, a county commissioner of Carbon county, was in the city yesterday. He told Dr. C. A. Wherry, chairman of the Midland Trail association's money campaign committee, that Carbon county anticipates themselves to have a crew of men working in Price canyon and have contributed a concrete bridge to the trail. The bridge has been approved and accepted by the state road commission. This is the first bridge to be built on the trail north of Castle Gate.

INTEREST IN THE WESTMAN MURDER

Seattle, Wash., June 6.—Interest in the murder of Carl Axel Westman, a shipyard watchman, formerly a butcher for Chauncey Depew, John Rosbling and other wealthy New Yorkers, and who was mysteriously shot at Winslow, April 27, was revived today when Mrs. Anne Westman, the murdered man's widow and sister of John Northberg, a wealthy manufacturer of Milwaukee, was taken to Winslow for by the heat, but no one so seriously that he or she was unable to enjoy the pleasures of the many events which followed.

The May pole dance was the big feature of the exercises, 600 boys and girls furling and unfurling the many colored streamers with remarkable precision.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED MILE COWBOY RACE

Kansas City, June 7.—A fifteen hundred-mile cowboy race for a prize of $1,000 started from Kansas City yesterday. Miller Hawk of Spur, Tex., William Benton, Sierra Blanco, Tex., and T. O. Henderson, Coyama, Mex. are the contestants and their destination is Winnipeg, Canada. Each of the riders has a pack pony besides his mount. They will go by the way of Omaha, over the same route to Minneapolis. There each will choose a separate trail.

"We will make 25 miles a day at first," said one of the riders, "but on the home stretch we will make seventy miles a day."

Mayor Joel, who sent a letter with the racers to the mayor of Winnipeg, acted as official starter.

AMERICANS WIN TENNIS MATCH

West Side Tennis Club, New York, June 7.—Before a gallery which tested the capacity of the stands, the United States and Australasian tennis teams played the third game of their Davis cup preliminary matches here this afternoon. With two victories already to their credit, the American team needed but one of the three remaining matches to clinch the right to enter the second round against Germany, to be played in England next month.

The one match played this afternoon was the doubles which brought together Maurice McLoughlin and Harold H. Hackett, representing the United States and Stanley N. Douthett and A. B. Jones for Australia. It was announced that if America won, the two remaining single matches scheduled for Monday would be played, although they will have no bearing on the final result. Should, however, the Australians conquer in the doubles, the United States still would have two chances to clinch the preliminary match.

Weather conditions today were not as perfect as on Friday. A lead grey sky held a threat of rain and wind from the south gave a heavy touch to the atmosphere.

The Australian pair was first to make its appearance, coming on the court at 2:50. Jones and Douthett immediately settled down to practice and were volleying when McLoughlin and Hackett appeared at 2:55.

Hackett won the toss and chose service in the south court. At 3:03 McLoughlin shot the ball at Jones, who returned for the first point and the match was on.

The American pair forced their opponents to the back court and by brilliant volleying took the first game by a point score 4-2.

McLoughlin brought a round of applause by running far to the right of the court and returning a cross court shot from Jones' racket which appeared to be a sure point. The Australians took a hard hit at the net game and won the second game, 4-1. Hackett twice "nursed" the ball back for points and then clinched the third game, 4-2, by a clever sideline placement. Jones fooled Hackett with a back hand return and then Hackett scored the winning point with a fast alley shot. Score fourth game, 4-2.

With the score 30 all, McLoughlin won the fifth game with two terrific smashes from the back court which the visitors could not handle. On Jones' service the Australians won the sixth by a love score. Outs by Douthett gave the seventh game to the United States, 4-0.

INVESTIGATING AUTO ACCIDENT

Salt Lake, June 7.—To determine where lay the blame, if any, for the accident Thursday noon at Ninth East and Ninth South streets in which the automobile of Fire Chief W. H. Bywater ran into and killed Elaine McPhee Paulson, a coroner's jury of three justices of the peace is hearing testimony of eye-witnesses to the tragedy. Only a portion of the evidence was heard yesterday, the inquest having been continued until 10 o'clock this morning before acting coroner Harry S. Harper.

Late in the afternoon the jurors were taken to the scene of the accident for the purpose of acquainting them with the locations and distances described by the witnesses.

N. Paulson, the father of the dead girl, was asked last night for a statement. He said:

"My mind has been too numb with grief over my daughter's death for me to make any attempt to understand the exact nature of the accident yet. It would be impossible for me to give an opinion as to the responsibility of any one in connection with the affair, for the reason that I have not yet formed an opinion. I will be able to do so only after I have become acquainted as fully as possible with the details of the accident. For me to make an impulsive statement would be certain to result in unfairness one way or another."

Citizens living in the neighborhood of the accident were outspoken in their indignation last night. Many of those interviewed expressed the belief that there has been a sad laxity in the enforcement of the speed laws on Ninth East street, and particularly at the corner where the accident occurred.

VICE FOE ASSAILED, SAYS IT'S FRAMEUP

Barratt O'Hara.

Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara of Illinois declares that the attack recently made upon his character is a "frameup" by his enemies, who have been hurt by the revelations of the Illinois vice committee, of which O'Hara is chairman.

The charge made against O'Hara is that he and a prominent young woman of Springfield, Ill., registered at a Chicago hotel as "T. D. Duncan" and "Mrs. T. D. Duncan" on January 17 last.

BACK AGAIN AS A TURK AT THE TOM-TOM

Through the happy arrangements of the landlord to whom he owed $15 for room rent, Joseph Senn, the tom-tom beater at the Oriental show on the Carnival grounds, was able to settle his obligations and at the same time pay the fine of $5 which the court attached.

The landlord stated that, after he had recognized Senn as the former boiler-maker, the proprietor of the show had come to him and had told him the dance could not go on unless his drummer was on hand. The landlord told the proprietor that he appreciated the situation and accepted $5 on the bill and the show proprietor put up $10 bail for his musician.

The understanding was that the landlord was to get what money was left after the fine had been paid.

The hotel man told the judge that he would be satisfied with $10 in place of the $15. The judge said that if that arrangement suited the landlord, it would please the court so he imposed a fine of $5 on Senn. The landlord then took the remaining $5 of the money deposited with the clerk and went away satisfied.

Senn went to the carnival grounds and dressed in his Turkish costume for the afternoon performance.

DRILLERS AFTER OIL GAS WELL A SUCCESS

Box Elder News:

The leasers of oil land west of this city are sanguine of success in their enterprise now to secure oil in the big field. The well that was driven on the Knudsen property has demonstrated that the field is one of the best yet known and the prospects are very best. This well is at a depth of 300 feet and is throwing off great quantities of gas. The product is of a very high quality and is known by its ingredients to come from oil. It is of the kind that can be reduced to gasoline and is highly explosive. There is no water at the depth where this gas was found and now that the main body has been tapped there seems to be no mud or other hindrances. A few more wells like the one now secured would support Brigham City with light and fuel for many years.

The company is going after oil now out on Erdmann's ranch about a mile west of the gas well. They began moving the last of the week and are set up just north of Erdmann's barn. There they will sink the pipe and are confident that it can be secured at an easy depth. Monday the drilling machine was broken but the necessary repairs have been made and

CONNECTING UP WITH THE DEE HOSPITAL

Due to the delay in getting the cross rails for connecting the Washington avenue and the Twenty-third street lines, intersection, Manager P. D. Kline of the Rapid Transit company states that the connection will not be made until Tuesday. He expects to have the Twenty-third street line in operation from Washington avenue to the Dee hospital, Wednesday.

The Wall avenue extension to Thirty-third street will be made as soon as the Bamberger company removes its track on the street grade at the intersection of the Bamberger road and the Rapid Transit line.

Mr. Bamberger stated some time ago that he would remove the rails at an early date, but he now advises the Rapid Transit company that it may be three months before he can do so. The city commissioners have been informed of the possible delay and it is expected that they will insist on the Bamberger company removing the track immediately.

Preparations have not yet been made for the Twenty-fourth street extension from Washington to Wall and along Wall to Twenty-fifth streets, and the manager and other officers of the Rapid Transit company have no idea as to when it will be done. It is said, however, that in all likelihood, when the Kiesel block and the Eccles skyscraper are finished, the Twenty-fourth street loop will be constructed.

The Twenty-seventh street extension is also at a standstill because of discouraging grades and the proposed paving of Jefferson avenue from Twenty-fifth to Twenty-seventh streets.

MELZER HERE FROM WASHINGTON D. C.

E. A. Melzer of the department of agriculture, who has been in the city on fiscal agent's work, will remain in the city about two weeks and during that time the manual will be gone over and slight revisions made.

The gentleman states that no radical changes are to be made in any direction in the fiscal department and he says that the article in some of the papers a short time ago about the great revolution that was about to take place in the fiscal department was far fetched and unwarranted in fact.

Ogden is an important point in the fiscal department, as practically all the printing is done here and it is the central point for all the forest districts of the service. The printing to be done includes the manual, forms and statements.

Melzer has just started on his work in the Ogden office.

"DOC" WILEY SAYS THIS IS THE FINEST BABY IN CAPTIVITY; SOME BABE, ANYWAY

Dr. Wiley's baby and the "Doc" himself.

Here's the very latest picture of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the former chief chemist of the department of agriculture at Washington, and his year-old son, Harvey W. Wiley, Jr. The pure food expert has some decided views on babies, and of course he thinks his own is the best of them all.

This picture was taken while the doctor had the baby in charge and was made to surprise Mrs. Wiley. She found the finished copies of the photograph on her dinner plate on her baby's first anniversary a few days ago.

something important will develop in the next few days or weeks. The promoters say there never was a stronger indication of success in any field than in this one and the developments thus far bear it out completely.

WOODCRAFT AT PARK CITY

The term of office for state officers was changed from two years to four years. Election of state officers then was held and a spirited election it proved to be, as several ballots were required for a choice in several instances. The results follow: Mrs. W. P. Westerfield, Park City, district guardian; Mrs. C. Daly, Salt Lake, district chaplain; Mrs. R. Sullivan, Midvale, district agent; Mrs. R. Boyd, Salt Lake, district magician; Mrs. S. Bacon, Eureka, district attendant; Mrs. C. Crawford, Provo, captain of guard; Mrs. S. Moore, Murray, inner sentinel; Mrs. T. Broberg, Salt Lake, outer sentinel. Delegates to Portland national convention in August: Mrs. S. Hayman, Ogden; Mrs. T. Stockings, Salt Lake.

The next state convention will be held at Provo in 1917. After the lodge work was finished a short program was given by the members of Park City circle, No. 481, and later an elaborate luncheon was served to all day and at that time the Park City lodge for the splendid hospitality extended.

Early in the game the animal man was having a hard time competing with the other inhabitants of the jungle. He was shrewder than they and he pitted his brains against their strength and endurance. To his mind the suggestion came to rise up on his hind legs and to release his forelegs from the duty of carrying him; it should be possible to change his center of gravity, and two legs were enough to carry any animal around.

MAN'S POSTURE.

Mowk was right. The monkey tribe constituted the only people shrewd enough to see it in that early day, and at that they tried to compromise. Said they:

"This walking on the hind legs is a good thing in some cases, but there is about half the time when the old way is the better way. We, the banderlog, have more wisdom than Mowk. We will walk on two legs when that is best, and on four when that way is best."

The banderlog missed the essential point. The reason for walking on the hind legs was to free the forelegs for other work. Work—more important than walking.

The upright posture is far from being a perfect posture for man. In the thousands of years that he has been standing that way he has not wholly rearranged himself on that basis. Many of his anatomical points are on the old basis. From an incomplete adjustment the appendix results, and in its wake, comes appendicitis. From it comes constipation and the list of ills that follow it.

In many things in life we gain by following our animal instinct. When in doubt in many situations the way to triumph is to follow instinct.

However, this is not true of posture. Man holds himself upright as the result of the call to higher things. His instinct would make him slouch and slump.

The spirit in him calls on him to toes to stand straight and square, to hold his head up and his chin in and to look straight to the front.

The animal in him, the great instinct that has come down in his germ plasm through the ages, bids him to slouch.

When the beast in him is dominating he stands four square. When he is worn by sickness or by age he stoops.

One of the helpful chapters in Bancroft's "Posture of School Children" is entitled "Erect Carriage as an Expression of Intelligence and Character." He says:

"That a person standing erect looks to be more intelligent and energetic than one in poor posture needs no argument; it is self-evident. Under this appearance, giving it reality, lies the biologic fact that the erect position has been coincident with the development of the brain as it exists in man."

An illustration how mind affects posture.

posture and posture affects mind. Bancroft quotes Darwin as follows:

"The free expression by outward signs of an emotion intensifies it. On the other hand, the repression, as far as this is possible, of all outward signs softens our emotions. He who gives way to violent gestures will increase his rage; he who does not control the signs of fear will experience fear in greater degree; and he who remains passive when overwhelmed with grief loses his best chance of recovering elasticity of mind."

"These results follow partly from the intimate relation which exists between almost all the emotions and their outward manifestations; and partly from the direct influence of exertion on the heart, and consequently on the brain."

PERSEVERANCE.

Savonarola was one of the most picturesque and influential preachers the world has ever seen or heard.

The huge Italian churches in which he thundered forth his sermons were too small for the throngs of earnest men, women and children who crowded, sometimes even fought, to hear him.

Once a young man of noble Roman family, who at the time was studying for the priesthood and afterward became a powerful archbishop, made a pilgrimage to Savonarola's cell in order to converse with him.

They discussed many subjects of interest to them both, and finally the visitor, immensely impressed by the earnestness and brilliant personality of the great orator, asked this question:

"Dear father," he said, "what do you think is the greatest of virtues?"

Savonarola's dark eyes looked straight into the eyes of the young man as he answered without hesitation, "perseverance."

Then he went on to explain.

"By perseverance I mean persistence, staying with a thing through thick and thin, remaining faithful to the end."

"For, think of it, my son. Of what possible use is any virtue unless we add to it perseverance?"

"Hundreds of thousands of people start well, whether in the church or the army, or in business, or the professions. But how many of them end well, finally reaching the goal which they have set for themselves?"

He pointed to a well-thumbed edition of an ancient book.

"That book tells us there were 600,000 men," he continued, "600,000, be-side women and children, who went out of Egypt a few centuries ago in search of the promised land."

"How many got there?"

"Out of the hundreds of thousands of them there were just two men who entered the milk-and-honey country. That is to say a great many began the journey very well, indeed, but only two of them ended well."

"Another who began life well was Judas Iscariot."

"The reason he didn't end well was because he lacked the virtue of perseverance."

The wise of mankind spoke solemnly as he clasped the hand of the young man before him who was about to enter on his life's work.

"It isn't enough to begin well," he reiterated. "Nor is it sufficient to continue to do well only for a time. Nothing amounts to anything at all unless we hold on and persist, stay with it, remain faithful to the end."

"This applies to you and every one, for who is there who is not laboring to do something in the world?"

"It is important first, of course, to see to it that you lay a good foundation. But in building a house there is not only the foundation to consider. We must build on higher and higher, until we have driven the last nail in the highest pinnacle of the roof."

"So in life, if we expect to reach success we must carry our work to perfection, persevere, stick to it, remain faithful to the end."

HENPECKED.

"We're terribly henpecked, pa, ain't we?"

"Why, what do you mean, my boy?"

"Well, ma makes me wash my hands before I come to the supper table, and she makes you wash yours before you hook her up the back."
